Mississippi has markers noting a blues trail, a country music trail, a civil rights trail and even an Indian mound trail. Now, with the dedication of a marker to the late author Eudora Welty, the state is starting a writers trail. Gov. Phil Bryant and National Endowment for the Humanities Chairman Jon Parrish Peede dedicated the first marker Monday at Welty's home in Jackson.

Voodoo Bluez is a dynamic show that will take audience members on a journey through classic old and new blues music with aerial tricks, great costumes and expert choreography.

The show was created by Karen Maybury, who found inspiration for the show after visiting New Orleans.

"When I went to New Orleans, I was very intrigued," Maybury said. "It's so full of surprises and mystery."

So she created a show that helps her feel like she's there.

Maybury collaborated with her husband, Dave Webb, on the musical aspects of the show. "He's a great musician," Maybury said. "Over they years, when we've been working, we've done a lot of blues."

The show starts in the 1800s and focuses on young Angele, who is intrigued by Voodoo practitioner Marie Leveau.

One night, Angele disappears from the streets and returns centuries later, where the audience can appreciate the contrast between old and new blues music and see all of the characters come together.

"The history of the music really made the show come to life," Maybury said.

The show will feature classic blues music such as "At Last," "I'll Be Seeing You" and "Superstition," as well as the popular hits of today such as "Black Magic Woman," "I Put a Spell on You" and "Bad to the Bone."

A short version of the show has been highly successful on cruise ships, and the show at The Sharon will be Voodoo Bluez's premiere on land.

The show, which is at 8 p.m. Oct. 27, will coincide with the Halloween Bash event at Spanish Springs Town Square the same night.

People can attend the event on the square, trick-or-treat, participate in the costume contest and head to the show.

Some of the cast members from Voodoo Bluez will have a tent on the square. They will be dressed in full costume and ready to interact and take pictures with participants.

"I hope the audience has a really fun night and comes out of the show excited and exhilarated," Maybury said.

Tickets range from $20 to $49 and can be purchased online at thevillagesentertainment.com or at any Villages Box Office location.
